

Love and learn

With resort-based classes and cultural offerings, honeymooners can make new memories, become immersed in the destination and learn cool new skills, too. Here are some ideas:

SADDLE UP Tanque Verde Ranch (tanqueverderanch.com) in the pristine Arizona desert is a great place to take riding lessons and learn horsemanship. In the picturesque Pacific Northwest, Brasada Ranch's Equestrian Center (brasada.com/equestrian), customizes riding lessons according to experience and ability.

SAIL AWAY The Four Seasons Resort Nevis (fourseasons.com/nevis) operates an eight-hour SailLaser program. For more casual boaters, Regent Palms (regentpalms.com) in the Turks & Caicos offers complimentary sailing lessons on the basics of a speedy Hobie Wave.

TOAST FOR TWO Beautiful Bacara Resort (bacararesort.com) near California's Central Coast wine country, offers a hands-on harvest experience at local wineries during winemaking lessons from grape selecting and sorting to tasting. If wine isn't your beverage of choice, get bartending lessons at Sheraton Hacienda del Mar (sheratonhaciendadelmar.com) in Los Cabos. You'll learn to mix and serve everything from martinis to mojitos and mango margaritas. —Maryann Hammers

GREAT GIFT

If you prefer traveling over linens and tableware, be sure to add the National Parks and Federal Recreation Lands Annual Pass to your bridal gift registry. For $80 (usgs.gov), you get access to 58 national parks and 74 national monuments countrywide. The pass is good for four adults—what better opportunity to double date with friends?
